BATTERING PATH THROUGH HUNS

ALLIES GAINING GROUND AT IMPORTANT POINTS OF LINE.

(By the Associated Press)
Battering their path through strong German defenses allied troops made substantial gains on either side of Fere-en-Tardenois. Fierce fighting continues on both sectors with enemy being forced back steadily. West of Fere the salient has been widened while east and southeast the Germans are in a small pocket between Gorgy and Romigny and are in a fair way of being cut off completely. Seven hundred prisoners have been captured by French, British and Americans bringing the total for the second Marne battle up over 24,000. In their new positions Franco-British forces out flanked the German line northward to Soissons which has been virtually unchanged since the first days of allied counter offensive. Only artillery has been active elsewhere on the western front.

F. P. Lienallen now of Oklahoma City, concludes a business letter to the News thus: "We still believe Ada the best town in the state and the most lovable people in the world live in Ada, U. S. A."

JAPAN TO AID CZECHO-SLOVAKS

AGREEMENT REACHED WITH ALLIES FOR JOINT ACTION IN SIBERIA

(By the Associated Press)
Washington, Aug. 2.—Joint action between Japan and the entente powers is assured. Japan has found acceptable the American proposal which primarily looks to the aid of the Czecho-Slovaks now operating in Siberia.

After exchanges between Tokio and Washington have cleared up all doubtful points and removed possibilities of future misunderstandings, a complete agreement has been reached. The plan of operation will be put into execution at once.

Teachers Must Take Oath.
Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 2.—A ruling of the State Board of Education sets at rest all doubt about teachers being required to take the oath of office before beginning their terms of school. The ruling is that "every teacher must sign the oath of office and further that any objections that might be raised to such an oath would not be considered." Many inquiries concerning this had been received by the state superintendent and the official ruling of the board was asked.

ALLIES SCORE IMPORTANT GAIN

RIDGE CAPTURED MAY PROVE DECISIVE FACTOR IN THE CAMPAIGN.

(By the Associated Press)
London, August 2.—The Franco-British attack on the western side of the Marne salient yesterday was on a five mile front and penetrated to a maximum depth of three miles, according to news received today. The action resulted in the capture of the entire ridge which forms the watershed between the Ourcq and Aisne. The importance of this victory lies in the fact that the new allied positions command the entire area northward and takes the flank and rear of the whole western gate through which the Germans have been retreating. The situation is described in advance as the turning point of the summer campaign and possibly of the whole war.

French Capture Important Towns
On the French front in France, August 2.—The important town of Ville-en-Tardenois, on the eastern side of the Marne salient has been encircled by the allied forces. The French continuing to advance have taken an additional town and villages at various parts of the front between Rheims and Soissons. The enemy are resisting desperately and losing in prisoners.

SAYS FERGUSON GOT CASH FROM BREWERS

Austin, Texas, August 2.—That Governor James E. Ferguson, in April, 1917, received a loan of $150,000 from Texas brewers, for which he gave three notes at 5 per cent interest, was the testimony of Louis A. Adoue of Galveston this afternoon in the trial in the Federal District Court here of Henning Bruhn and Charles Grossman, charged with failure to report in income and excess profits tax returns items totaling $33,750 which the Government claims were taxable. These items included $25,000, which, Mr. Adoue testified, was the Lone Star Brewing Association's participation in the $150,000 loan, and three smaller items, which the Government alleges were used in influencing prohibition legislation and local option elections. The loan to governor Ferguson was made by the brewers; Mr. Adoue testified through R. L. Autry of Houston and Otto Wahrman of San Antonio, the latter a member of the present Legislature. Mr. Adoue said that he recommended to Mr. Bruhn, president of the Lone Star Brewing Association, that their company participate, as "Wahrman and Autry were putting up $100,000 and the Lone Star ought to take part." Mr. Adoue said he did not remember the arrangement of the notes in detail, but there were three of the $50,000 each, the first due in eighteen months from date, which was in April, 1917, the second twenty-four months from date and the third somewhat later. The notes, he testified, were made by Governor Ferguson, payable to himself, and indorsed in blank and turned in to those in whose custody they now are.

H. W. Hoffman of Seminole and a number of other citizens of the county were in the city today in the interest of Judge Eolen's candidacy.

Gaul may have been divided into three parts in the days of the late lamented J. Caesar, but not in the days of J. Ferguson of Texas. He talked favorably about woman suffrage during the campaign, but now claims he was defeated by this vote and talks of contesting the constitutionality of the law permitting them to vote.

The printing interests have been hard hit by the advancing prices of everything that is used in the business as well as by the necessity of raising wages to the highest point ever known in the history of the trade. The management of the News has done much figuring and scheming to get by and although extremely distasteful to raise its subscription rates, it appeared that there was nothing else for it. However, we have finally decided to go ahead at the old rates for the present and see if it is possible to squeeze by, even though we get notices every day of advances in prices, for we do not want to add to the burdens of our friends if we can avoid it. It depends largely on the promptness of our subscribers in paying up whether we can maintain the subscription price at the present figures. If all settle promptly perhaps we can get by for the present. Prof. E. A. McMillan is the collector and will see you soon.

A WOMAN HATER

By M. D. WHITNEY.

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Dear Helen—It's no use, old girl. You might as well leave me alone in my "blessed singleness" and forget you know me when your desire for match-making runs high.

You see, my dear sister—no kind of girl can interest me. You have tried out every brand, all to no purpose. Horrors! I shudder, yet every time I think of that Smith girl with t-baby face, watching my every move with her adoring eyes. If I had to endure that longer than a week I'd be a dead one. And that vinegar-faced Miss Clapp, with her woman's rights. My hair is streaked with gray today, as a result of having her inflicted on me for two days.

And Miss Munyon, the helress—Helen, where was your love for me when you invited me to look after that dame for a perfectly good week end? Or was it your sweet way of teaching me that all is not gold that glitters.

Filled with apprehension on account of my many narrow escapes, I must decline your kind invitation for the coming week end, and your newest protegee, Miss Longley, will have to be thrust upon some other poor victim.

How are the kiddos? Will run down to see them as soon as your guests have gone, and I can venture forth in safety.

By-by, sister mine—and pardon me for being a happy confirmed bachelor. Lovingly yours, BOB.

"Of all the conceited, impossible, exasperating brothers, Bob Thornton is the worst." Helen Arnold threw the letter into the hearth fire.

That afternoon in the telegraph office of the city, however, the same Bob was doing a strange thing. He was actually staring at a very pretty vision in a pink linen suit and large pink hat.

His thoughts were interrupted by the young lady's voice. "I wish to send a telegram, please. Will you take it, to Mrs. Helen Arnold, Mountainville, N. H."

"Great heavens," exclaimed Bob—"my sister Helen—wonder who she is." Needless to say, he waited anxiously for the message.

"Dear Helen," it ran. "Cannot come before six o'clock train. Will arrive Mountainville about 8:30.

(Signed) "ALICE LONGLEY."

"Alice Longley—Bob Thornton, you're a fool, and everything that goes with it." But without further reflection he grasped a pad, and a second message was sent to his sister. "Have changed my mind. Will arrive 8:30 train."

"BOB."

If she still bore any resentment for Bob's first letter, she had ample revenge in the three days which followed.

Bob was the devoted slave of Alice Longley, who with her sweet, quiet manner of refusing his every attention nearly drove him mad. When after maneuvering for all he was worth to accomplish it, he was finally chosen as her escort for the bungalow party and dance, he was happy for the first time since his arrival.

But at the last moment the children's maid received a call to come at once to the bedside of a dying sister, and Mrs. Arnold did not know what to do. She could not stay at home, since she was the hostess of the occasion.

Much to Bob's dismay, Alice Longley sweetly asked if she might stay with the children. She would much prefer it to going to the dance, and she knew Mr. Thornton would be glad to excuse her, for—with a smile at Bob—there were so many other girls who were waiting to dance with him.

About an hour after the departure of the party for the dance, Bob Thornton returned disconsolate looking, and angrily chewing the end of an unlighted cigar.

He found Alice sitting in a big library chair—having put the youngsters to sleep, mending a pair of tiny socks.

She was very much surprised to see him, and much more surprised, when with a sudden movement he came forward and without a word, lifted her in his arms from the big chair, and kissed her soundly on either cheek.

"There," he exclaimed, "Now I suppose you will hate me worse than ever, but I just couldn't help it Miss Longley—Alice please forgive me," as he saw the look of pained indignation in her eyes—"I can only excuse myself, by telling you the truth. I love you—how much only God knows, and when I came upon you suddenly, after a miserable hour of longing for you—well please don't ask me to explain any more. Only tell me, dear—could you, would you, let me try to make you love me. Please give me a chance."

Alice Longley's eyes were smiling now, even though the lashes were wet. "Mr. Thornton—Bob," she replied, "you do not need a chance. I have loved you from the first day—when I saw you in the telegraph office trying in your clumsy man's way to disguise your curiosity over my telegram. But I had been warned of your heartlessness with women, and was determined that you should not add my name to the list of conquests."

What Bob Thornton replied to that speech, and how the rest of that evening was spent, can better be imagined than described.

Mrs. Bob Thornton is a very happy bride now and when her young friends ask her for advice, she replies with out fail: Give him a reasonable good dose of indifference.

EXPERIENCE OF PRISONER ON U-BOAT

London, Aug. 2.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—Sensations experienced in a German submarine while depth bombs were being discharged overhead were described recently by a British merchant ship captain who was a prisoner for fifteen days aboard a U-boat.

In an interview the English commander, captured by the Germans after his vessel had been torpedoed, related how the depth bombs shook the under sea craft and created consternation among the sailors. In one instance the faces of the Germans became white with fear and all stood trembling after the first shot, which was not near enough to destroy the submersible. All were expecting a second discharge.

The English commander reached his native land after having been imprisoned for months at Brandenburg where he said, he and other ship officers at times had been harnessed to carts which were used to haul mail and packages from the postoffice to the prisoners' camp.

Seven vessels were torpedoed by the Germans while the British captain was aboard the U-boat. Previously the English officer had been in command of a merchant vessel which had also met its fate at the hands of a submarine crew.

"On the third day after I had been taken prisoner," said the captain, "just after the midday meal, I gathered that the submarine was about to carry out an attack on a convoy which had just been sighted. The U-boat approached submerged for some distance and torpedoed a large steamer. Our whereabouts apparently were detected, I was told, by an allied light cruiser, for we dived rapidly to a great depth.

"Hardly had the submarine reached an even keel when we heard and felt a tremendous explosion which caused the U-boat to vibrate from stem to stern. It was a depth charge from the cruiser.

"The effect on the crew was evident. All stood trembling with faces blanched with fear, not attempting to speak, expecting a second charge, the result of which might mean the destruction of the boat and without the slightest chance for us to escape.

"There is no doubt in my mind of the mental attitude of the crew, for it was not the first experience of the men with a depth charge, and they had learned from others in the service what terrible weapons depth bombs were in the hands of skillful seamen.

"For some moments we waited; engines were stopped and all means were taken to prevent giving indication of our position. Minutes seemed like hours in such a situation. I'll admit that I was turning over in my mind whether I should see my family again. No additional explosions took place, however, and after remaining some eighteen fathoms deep or a long period we continued our voyage.

"A few days later we had another experience with depth charges, or 'wasser bomben' as the German sailors call them. A sailing vessel had just been sunk by shell fire when two allied destroyers were sighted, and down we went. By the microphones the propellers could be heard and as the vessels came nearer and nearer we in the submarine could hear the thudding quite distinctly. To and fro the destroyers went searching for us. Evidently they picked up a clue, for there were two explosions ahead but not so near us as that from the cruiser, but quite close enough to cause the submarine to tremble and then roll about as though in a heavy sea."

Prison camp conditions in Germany were described by the British captain as being deplorable.

"Although we were merchant ship captains imprisoned at Brandenburg, we were made to suffer various indignities," he said.

"We were compelled to harness ourselves to carts which we had to draw through the streets to the station or postoffice in order to fetch our parcels and any commodities to camp. It was at this camp also that I saw three hundred Russian soldiers working, all of whom were in the last stages of tuberculosis. The poor fellows could not get enough to eat, and they would eagerly scrape discarded tin cans in the hope of finding particles of food. I have even seen German soldiers do the same thing. We were glad to search the cinder paths at any opportunity in anticipation of finding bits of coke or coal with which to cook our food."

The captain said his ship was torpedoed without warning and that after he and all his men were afloat in life boats the submarine appeared on the surface and he was taken prisoner, the mates and seamen being permitted to start in the direction of land. Describing the submarine the British captain said:

"She was a fairly large craft, of recent numbering, having three torpedo tubes, two in the bow and one aft and carried ten torpedoes. She was also armed with a gun for shell fire just forward of the conning tower.

"My first meal aboard the U-boat consisted of a stew made with stringy meat, probably horseflesh, supplemented by small portions of sausage with black bread. As the voyage progressed this bread became mildewed and uneatable, and then some bread of lighter color, which had been kept in hermetically sealed receptacles, was served, but was even more unpalatable than the black bread. The coffee was made of burned barley and acorns. The commander and officers of the U-boat fared as the lower ratings, but were able to supplement their allowances with tinned ham and other canned food."

As the submarine was forced to keep below the water's surface a great deal of the time life aboard the submarine was anything but pleasant.

"The boat sweated and all spare clothing became saturated with moisture, while the atmosphere often became foul and breathing difficult," he asserted. "While we were submerged the crew would start the gramophone. That machine supplied the music which was played triumphantly when the U-boat got another victim. Really the sinking of any innocent merchantman caused that crew as much joy as if the members had sunk a war ship.

"One night there was more than the usual amount of rejoicing and the gramophone's liveliest airs were played. The Germans had torpedoed an oil tanker which, according to the commander, sank in thirty seconds. I could not help wondering at the mentality of men who could rejoice at such a thing, knowing that without giving them the slightest chance of defending themselves or escaping they had sent innocent sailors to their deaths.

"The next day we seemed to be out of the track of steamers, and I went into the conning tower and saw the officers amusing themselves by shooting at gulls or empty bottles.

"By this time the submarine evidently had reached the extreme outward point of her voyage, and we started on our return trip to Helgoland. Three Norwegian ships were stopped for the purpose of obtaining fresh food. Soon after this there was much excitement when it was ascertained that there was a British submarine in our vicinity. By listening the crew could hear the enemy submarine, and the Germans feared she was going to attack us. We submerged and eventually dodged the British vessel.

"The U-boat was equipped with powerful wireless apparatus, and each evening, providing the weather and other conditions were favorable, the German commander remained on the water's surface in wireless communication with his base."

The British captain finally arrived in Helgoland, and afterward was transferred to Brandenburg. Eventually he was taken to Switzerland and released, reaching England on June 19.

And now the captain is getting ready to go to sea again.

CANADIAN TELLS OF ARMY LIFE

FORMER WINNEPEG BANKER GIVES SOME GLIMPSES INTO ARMY LIFE AT THE FRONT

Lieutenant C. J. Alloway, of the Canadian army in France, delivered two stirring messages to the people of Pontotoc County yesterday. In the afternoon he spoke to several hundred men, women and children on the school grounds of Roff, and in the evening he addressed hundreds of Ada citizens in the Normal School auditorium. Mr. Alloway is thoroughly imbued with the spirit of the Allies, and says that it is a matter of conquering or going under the iron heel of German rulers.

He traced the activity of a soldier boy from the time he leaves home until he gets back wounded or meets his fate on the battle field. When the boy goes to camp, he first gets into physical condition by going through muscular exercises and drilling. The boy thinks that he drills for nothing, but when he gets into the battle lines, and is ordered over the top, he then realizes that his drilling is meant much. Here it is that sufficient drilling makes the boy feel that he is better than the opposing soldier.

In going to France, the soldiers are put on transports, oftentimes as many as sixteen transports going over at the same time. They wear life belts in the day time and sleep with them fastened to their arms at night. While few transports are sunk, the soldier must be ready for any emergency.

Arriving in France the Canadians are put through more training before taking their place in the trenches. Finally the word comes that they are to relieve a certain part of the front, and silently in the night they march into the trenches and the tired soldiers march out. The trenches in many places cannot be drained and are filled with mud and water. In places the trenches are well built and have a narrow sidewalk in the bottom. The sidewalk, however, is not to walk on, but is to be used when the boys are taking shots at the Fritzies.

Some night soon after going into the trenches, a telephone message will come from headquarters that says "Up and Over," that means that next morning just before day, they must charge over the top and collect the lives of a few Germans. As the first dim signs of light appear, they rush over the top, ease across No Man's land and jump mercilessly upon the Germans. It is easy to tell a German in this drive, for he always holds up his hands. A bayonet stab is sufficient to do away with him and on they rush for others. As soon as they think it is time, out of the trench they rush and back to their own lines.

On returning to their trenches, the roll is called, and those missing are hunted. A boy goes out for his comrade, finds him wounded on the field, manages to get the wounded boy on his back and struggles back to the trench again. The wounded boy is then rushed to the hospital and given the best medical treatment in the world.

The wounded are finally sent to England. If they have lost arms or legs, artificial limbs are made and fitted on, and the unfortunates are then taught to use them.

No person who is not a slacker should be without a liberty bond. The boys in France are fighting the battles for those at home. When the boy comes back home and finds no liberty bond in that home, he will not think much of it. He is the breadwinner, for he is keeping back the

The returned Canadian Lieutenant paid a glowing tribute to the fighting qualities of the Canadians. Not in a boastful manner but in a spirit of pride, he said that the Canadians had done better fighting than had ever been seen in the world before. The American will do just as well, given the same opportunity. Not since 1915 have the Germans attacked directly the fronts held by the Canadians.

When the wounded soldier opens his eyes and sees the sign of the Red Cross, his heart goes out to those who are furnishing the bandages and other comforts.

Turns Popularity TO PERSONAL GAIN

Atlanta Girl Dangles Slipper Gift Before Eyes of Lovers and They Succumb.

Atlanta, Ga.—A clever young lady of this city, who had many admirers, proved herself to be a master of high finance by the manner in which she turned her popularity to personal gain. For each of her male friends she bought slippers, all of the same pattern, which she had an aged colored seamstress make up. Meanwhile she kept a pair for herself in the parlor, where she could have them on hand whenever one of her lovers called.

Of course, each young man asked for whom she was making such pretty slippers. She would reply, with a bewitching smile and half a wink, "Oh, they're for a man friend of mine."

Then each infatuated youth went away to invest in a gift. The girl bestowed upon each of them a pair of slippers. The presents from her adoring friends averaged $45 a man.

The pair the girl worked herself presented to a young dry goods clerk in Atlanta, to whom she was secretly married. She disposed of her other presents and had enough money to start a modest housekeeping establishment.

CONVICT FINDS NEW WORLD

Man Leaves the Penitentiary Old and Feeble After 17 Years' Imprisonment.

Walla Walla, Wash.—Edward Sutherland stepped from the penitentiary the other day into a land of strange things and made his way into Walla Walla, that he almost failed to recognize.

He was the oldest prisoner in the institution and 17 years of his life were spent there. His release papers arrived from Olympia that morning and as soon as he could be fitted out in clothing he was let go. Sutherland was sent up for 20 years in 1900 for attacks on women and girls.

Sutherland was taken to the penitentiary to save him from mob violence after being attacked. He was convicted on two charges, one brought by a young girl and the other by an older woman, and was given 14 years for each offense. He was past middle age at that time and left prison aged and feeble, a mere shadow of his former self.

FINDS BROTHER AFTER 20 YEARS' ABSENCE

Paterson, N. J.—Mourned for nearly twenty years as one of the victims of the battleship Maine, John Nelson, thirty-seven years old, surprised his brother, William Nelson, a Paterson (N. J.) business man, when he walked into the latter's store, in Sixteenth avenue, and spoke to him.

John Nelson enlisted in the United States navy at the age of seventeen, soon after the Spanish-American war broke out. His family never heard from him after he left home and it was taken for granted that he had perished, under an assumed name, when the Maine went down. While he was mourned as lost he spent 20 years in thrilling experiences in all parts of the globe.

He served two enlistments in the navy, later going on a whale hunt in the South Seas. He became a licensed sea captain and traveled to all ports. Since 1905 he spent most of his time in trips around the world. For several months past he was in Europe and spent some time in France. There he saw the welcome to General Pershing and the American expeditionary forces.

Men in Training

Fighting isn't the only duty of a soldier, and exposure to bullets is not as serious as exposure to all kinds of weather and dampness. Rheumatic aches, sore and stiff muscles, strains and sprains, chilblains and neuralgia, all are enemies of the soldier, and the relief for all these pains and aches is Sloan's Liniment. CHAPTER XV.

Listening Post.
It was six in the morning when we arrived at our rest billets, and we were allowed to sleep until noon; that is, if we wanted to go without our breakfast. For sixteen days we remained in rest billets, digging roads, drilling, and other fatigues, and then back into the front-line trench.

Nothing happened that night, but the next afternoon I found out that a bomber is general utility man in a section.

About five o'clock in the afternoon our lieutenant came down the trench and stopping in front of a bunch of us on the fire step, with a broad grin on his face, asked:

"Who is going to volunteer for listening post tonight? I need two men."

It is needless to say no one volunteered, because it is anything but a cushy job. I began to feel uncomfortable as I knew it was getting around for my turn. Sure enough, with another grin, he said:

"Empey, you and Wheeler are due so come down into my dugout for instructions at six o'clock."

Just as he left and was going around a traverse, Fritz turned loose with a machine gun and the bullets ripped the sandbags right over his head. It gave me great pleasure to see him duck against the parapet. He was getting a taste of what we would get later out in front.

Then, of course, it began to rain. I knew it was the forerunner of a miserable night for us. Every time I had to go out in front, it just naturally rained. Old Jupiter Pluvius must have had it in for me.

At six we reported for instructions. They were simple and easy. All we had to do was to crawl out into No Man's Land, lie on our bellies with our ears to the ground and listen for the tap, tap of the German engineers or sappers who might be tunneling under No Man's Land to establish a mine-head beneath our trench.

Of course, in our orders we were told not to be captured by German patrols or reconnoitering parties. Lots of breath is wasted on the western front giving silly cautions.

AS SOON AS IT WAS DARK, whether and I crawled to our post which was about halfway between the lines. It was raining bucketfuls, the ground was a sea of sticky mud and clinging to us like glue.

We took turns in listening with our ears to the ground. I would listen for twenty minutes while Wheeler would be on the qui vive for German patrols.

We each wore a wristwatch, and believe me, neither one of us did over twenty minutes. The rain soaked us to the skin and our ears were full of mud.

Every few minutes a bullet would crack overhead or a machine gun would traverse back and forth.

Then all firing suddenly ceased. I whispered to Wheeler, "Keep your eyes skinned, mate; most likely Fritz has a patrol out—that's why the Boches have stopped firing."

We were each armed with a rifle and bayonet and three Mills bombs to be used for defense only.

I had my ear to the ground. All of a sudden I heard faint, dull thuds. In a low but excited voice I whispered to Wheeler, "I think they are mining listen."

He put his ear to the ground and in an unsteady voice spoke into my ear:

"Yank, that's a patrol and it's heading our way. For God's sake keep still."

I was as still as a mouse and was scared stiff.

Hardly breathing and with eyes trying to pierce the inky blackness, we waited. I would have given a thousand pounds to have been safely in my dugout.

Then we plainly heard footsteps and our hearts stood still.

A dark form suddenly loomed up in front of me; it looked as big as the Woolworth building. I could hear the blood rushing through my veins; and it sounded as loud as Niagara falls.

Forms seemed to emerge from the darkness. There were seven of them in all. I tried to wish them away. I never wished harder in my life. They muttered a few words in German and melted into the blackness. I didn't stop wishing either.

All of a sudden we heard a stumble, a muddy splash, and a muttered "Donner und Blitzen." One of the Boches had tumbled into a shell hole. Neither of us laughed. At that time—it didn't strike us as funny.

About twenty minutes after the Germans had disappeared something from the rear grabbed me by the foot. I nearly fainted with fright. Then a welcome whisper in a cockney accent "I s'y, myte, we've come to relieve you."

Wheeler and I crawled back to our trench; we looked like wet hens and felt worse. After a swig of rum we were soon fast asleep on the fire step in our wet clothes.

The next morning I was as stiff as a poker and every joint ached like a bad tooth, but I was still alive, so it did not matter.

However, he is determined to win the limit in doing his part to win the war.

Mrs. Walter Goynes is in receipt of a card from Harry Scott, who has been in the navy for some time past, saying he was across the waters again. The government is very careful about what the boys write from abroad and this was just a printed card saying his ship had arrived safely, but did not give the name of the ship nor the port. This makes four trips across the pond for Harry.

Largest Tabernacle Crowd

Last night Rev. S. Crutchfield delivered his sermon to the largest crowd yet seen in the Methodist tabernacle since the meeting began. His theme was "The Gospel Invitation" and the text was "The Spirit and the Bride say come," etc. The outline of the sermon was fourfold: Who is calling? To whom does he call? How does he call? What does he want? The message was enforced by many personal experiences and live illustrations. More than a dozen accepted the invitation at the close.

Interest in the service has grown day after day through the week and the faithful people of the churches have shown great devotion and great faith. The pastor has announced that there will be no services Sunday evening at the First Methodist church, but that all will be expected to attend the Tabernacle revival service at that time.

There was a great prayer meeting held yesterday evening by the young ladies and the announcement called for such a meeting this evening at eight at the Second Baptist church. To this meeting all the young ladies of the community are invited.

Until the meetings close the pastor and his father will alternate in preaching, making it about fifty-fifty between them. The general public is finding great interest in these meetings. Members of all churches are attending.

PONTOTOC WILL BE A BANNER COUNTY IN GRANTING THE BALLOT TO WOMEN.

Hon. M. L. Chambers,
Ada, Oklahoma.

My dear Mr. Chambers: As a candidate for the office of State Representative, the State Suffrage Campaign Committee feel sure that you are endorsing the great issue to be decided by the men of this State on November 5. As you know, the question of Woman Suffrage is to be voted upon at the General Election, and we earnestly hope and believe that you are speaking in favor of this question in all your public utterances.

It is peculiarly fitting at this time, when the women of our State and Country are so earnestly devoted to loyal and active service for the government, and are contributing to it their money, their work and their moral and spiritual support, that they should come asking for full citizenship at the hands of the voters. Since all political parties have endorsed this issue, there can be little question that it will be approved by the men of Oklahoma this fall. But we feel certain that you will wish to do your utmost to bring about the passage of the Woman Suffrage amendment. Therefore, we are asking you, with the utmost confidence, that you give your approval to this issue in the speeches you are making during the campaign.

Since the war began, England and Canada have granted full suffrage to their women. All the allied nations are approving the issue with a view to granting women equal political rights with men. Our enemy countries are the only ones that do not see fit to place their women on an equal standard with their men. Will the men of Oklahoma stand with the KAISER or with the ALLIES on this issue? Can there be any doubt as to their answer?

The House of Representatives of the United States has passed the National Suffrage amendment, endorsing suffrage for women, and it is ready for passage by the Senate of the United States. The great State of New York by an overwhelming majority, granted suffrage to its women last fall. Almost every State of the West has long since given women equal political rights with men. Is there any reason that Oklahoma should lag behind?

May we count on you through your public utterances, during the campaign, to push this question to a successful passage this fall? Trusting to hear from you favorably, and very soon, I am,

Cordially yours,

MRS. CLARENCE L. HENLEY.

Chairman Oklahoma State Suffrage Campaign Committee.
Dear Mrs. Henley: I appreciate the above letter from you, but it was wholly unnecessary. Whether I am nominated for the Legislature or not I will do my utmost during the next three months to make Pontotoc a banner County in this great cause. I have always been for suffrage and I grow more so with each passing day. And I am proving my faith by buying the space to print your letter and my reply—in order to help the good cause along as much as possible.

I am aware of the fact that since the war began England and Canada have granted full suffrage to their women, and I also know that it is a live question in Italy and France at this time and I cannot conceive of Oklahoma doing anything less than adopting it when the question comes to a vote. Why shouldn't we adopt it? Isn't the President of our country and leader of our party for it? Aren't all the candidates for Governor demanding it? With the exception of backward New Mexico don't all the States to the Pacific and Alaska have it? Aren't we bounded on the North by Suffrage Arkansas, and on the West by Suffrage Texas and Colorado? Aren't we just a black spot on a beautiful white flag on this question? Why certainly Oklahoma will adopt it, and as I said at first, Pontotoc County will be a Banner County and I will do my part in helping to put her "over the top." Let the good work go on.

Yours very truly,

M. L. CHAMBERS.

STATE COUNCIL DEFENSE ISSUES WARNING

From Oklahoma City Times.
Politicians seeking legislative positions in the eastern part of the state and advocating the repeal of the state law providing for the dipping of cattle and eradication of ticks got a jolt from the state council of defense yesterday when the secretary mailed a letter to all county secretaries in tick-infested areas warning them against the opposition that is developing to the law.

A resolution was passed by the state council at its meeting on July 27 directing county councils of defense to endorse the action of the federal and state agents in their work and to aid and co-operate with them in every way possible, as the work was considered by both state and nation as an important food conservation measure.

Reports reached the state board of agriculture several weeks ago, N. A. Lingenfelter, secretary of the board, said this morning that candidates for the legislature in McIntosh and several other counties were appealing for votes on a promise that they would work for the repeal of the state tick eradication law, and the action of the state council of defense endorsed the work of the federal and state agents.

More than 1,000,000 head of cattle in twenty-eight eastern and southern counties of the state, all in the tick infested area, were dipped and inspected during July by agents of the board of agriculture according to a report made public by Lingenfelter this morning.

Strong and Well Since She Took
Tanlac—Suffered For Years
She Says.

"Ever since Tanlac put an end to my troubles I feel so well and strong that I not only do all my own house work, but help my husband at the store besides," said Mrs. James Williams, wife of a well-known grocer and marketman, who lives at 3667 Metropolitan Ave., Dallas, Tex.

"For several years," she continued, "I was troubled with severe attacks of indigestion, and about three months ago, I had a spell that was so much worse than anything I had ever experienced before that it really alarmed me. My stomach would bloat up with gas, that pressed so on my heart I could hardly get my breath, and thought I would smother to death. My head ached like it would split. I became so nervous I could hardly sleep, and in the mornings I would feel so weak and fagged out that I was all I could do to get up and dress."

"I had taken all sorts of medicines and treatments without getting any benefit, but when several of my friends praised Tanlac to me so highly I decided to try it. Well, it proved to be just what I needed, for I began to feel better right off. I improved so fast that I could hardly realize it and I am now eating anything I want and have no trouble at all with gas and indigestion."

Those headaches are gone, I sleep like a child and get up in the mornings feeling fine. I am picking up right along, and have already gained several pounds. My confidence in Tanlac is so great that I am now telling all my friends about the good it has done me."

Tanlac is sold in Ada by Gwin & Mays Drug Company, and by leading druggists and dealers everywhere.

BUILDING BIG FLEET SUBMARINE CHASERS

Detroit, Aug. 2.—With the launching of Eagle-1, the first of the fleet of submarine destroyers being built by Henry Ford for the United States navy, detailed information concerning the construction, purposes and possibilities of this newest naval weapon became public for the first time. The general belief that the boats were little more than exaggerated launchers, equipped with light guns, was dispelled when the vessel, 204 feet long, larger than the old type of United States destroyers, was dropped into the waters of River Rouge by a great machine operated by hydraulic pressure. Tabulated by dates the story of the Eagle is this:

December 22, 1917—Henry Ford offered to build boats for the navy.

December 27—Discussed plans with Washington officials.

January 15, 1918—Navy department awarded Ford Company contract for Eagle.

January 18—Work on design of Eagle completed.

January 26—First piece for boat was completed.

February 7—Keel for first Eagle was laid.

February 20—Construction of the shipbuilding plant began.

March 1—Hull of the first Eagle was completed.

May 10—Work on the construction of Eagles was begun in shipbuilding plant.

June 15—Several boats were assembled.

July 11—First completed boat launched.

The Eagles are within thirty feet of approximating the length of the standard 3,500 ton wooden ships being built for the emergency fleet corporation.

Viewed from above deck, the Eagle is much more like a flounder than a mackerel. Its midship cross-section bears a strong likeness to the lines of a canal barge. Its stern is square and blunt. The remainder of the ship is built generally in straight lines and plane surfaces. The bow, however, tapers to a knife-like edge, seemingly sharp enough and strong enough literally to cut a submarine in two.

Except for the high deck house and the bridge a little forward amidship, the deck of the Eagle is unbroken. Utility has been the ruling consideration, with low cost production second in importance, and with beauty and comfort only incidentals.

The Eagles are built to pass easily through the Welland Canal and the boat's draught and beam are also small enough to permit of the boat's passing through the New York state barge canal. The boats will have a draw of eight feet when fully equipped and ready for sea. A steam turbine, geared to the propeller shaft on which is mounted a single three-blade screw of rather deep pitch, furnishes the motive power. Crude oil will be used as fuel. The tank capacity is easily sufficient for a steaming radius equal to the distance across the Atlantic.

There is not a forging or rolled beam in the entire ship. Everything is pressed from sheet metal, cold, by means of automatic machinery that cuts every piece to an exact pattern, then punches the rivet holes and bends every part to its required shape.

After the launching of the first Eagle Mr. Ford said: "I am, of course delighted at this initial success, but I knew it would be all right. When you have a task like this, entrusted to men who know their business, it can't go wrong. I left them alone—but watched all of the time."

"There's no use making unnecessary fuss over a little launching. We've got a lot more back in the shops nearly ready to follow Eagle 1."

Constipation is the starting point for many serious diseases. To be healthy, keep the bowels active and regular. HERBINE will remove all accumulations in the bowels and put the system in prime condition. Price 60c. Sold by Bart Smith.

Father Ate It.
The proprietor of a Cleveland meat market sold a nickel's worth of dog meat to a small boy, and was told the next day by the boy that the meat was not good, and that his father couldn't eat it. The butcher is now wondering who eats the meat he sells for dogs.

AIR BATTLE WON AGAINST HEAVY ODDS

British Air Force Headquarters in France, Aug. 2.—Brains and guile of thought are as necessary to the airmen as pluck, endurance and physical skill in aerial maneuvers. The English pilot of a single-seater fighter of the latest type, while cruising over the German lines the other day, saw below him three old-fashioned enemy machines flying steadily westward, as though to cross the lines into British territory.

Unfortunately, the Germans were too far off to be attacked economically, and the British pilot figured that if they realized his presence they would fly for home and safety long before he could get within range.

He therefore flew up into the clouds and then turned in the direction in which the enemy machines were moving.

Judging his time, he pushed the nose of his machine downward, dived out of the clouds to the Germans beneath, and, when close enough to be fairly sure of his mark, pressed the trigger of his gun. A stream of lead played about the German machines. None of them returned his fire.

Once before the pilot had heard of a similar occurrence. This flashed through his mind, and pulling back the control lever, he soared up again into the clouds. He was only just in time, for as he vanished into the vapor three enemy scouts appeared. The slow machines were the bait and the British airplane was the expected prey, for its pilot was well known and feared by the Germans in that part of the line.

Once he knew what the odds were against him, he no longer hesitated. Down once more out of the clouds he came, straight at the nearest scout. A short burst from his machine gun the hostile machine wavered, then slowly fell into a spin, hurtling downwards and crashing far below.

The odds were still five to one. True three of the enemy machines were slow and old fashioned, and taken alone might have been accounted for one by one, but the addition of two fast flying scouts manoeuvred by skilful pilots gave the matter a different aspect. The British pilot did not wait, but no sooner had one machine fallen than he flew at the next, banking, zooming, sideslipping, ever trying to reach the vulnerable spot in the enemy's armor. All the time the second scout was trying to secure a favorable position to fire at the attacker and the three old two-seaters were firing long-range bursts as opportunity afforded.

For some minutes this competition for position continued, each party firing short bursts without definite results. Then suddenly the deciding factor arrived.

Out of the sky loomed a two-seater British fighter of the latest type. It was proceeding on a special errand. Before the Germans had realized his arrival the new pilot steered his machine into the midst of the fight. A long burst from his rear gun caused one of the German fighters to stagger in its flight, then drop its nose and leave the combat. Evidently the pilot had been hit. Then together the two British machines charged the Germans. A short skirmish ensued before the enemy decided that discretion was the better part of valor and put their machines into spins to evade their adversaries' fire in the low altitudes close to earth where the anti-aircraft batteries would protect them.

Asking Favors.

When you ask a favor, act as if you expected it would be granted. A request that is unreasonable ought not to be made at all, and if it is reasonable, give people the credit for being ready to help. We pay our friends a poor compliment when we ask a little favor with an air of expecting that they are going to refuse.

HELPING PAPA

"Ah!" sighs the enamored swain, as the taxicab rolls smoothly and swiftly on its way. "If we might ride on thus forever together! Would it not seem heavenly to you?"

"It might be very nice," calmly responds the beautiful creature. "Papa owns a half-interest in this taxicab company."

HE KNEW

"Say, pop, what is 'woman's sphere'?"

"The earth—that is, they think so."

SURE

"You must treat me nice when he calls."

"It ain't up to me to treat him. It's his place to treat me."

HIS AMBITION

"So you're saving up to buy an airplane? You're quite an ambitious little boy."

"Yes, sir, I wants ter fly over Jimmie Mack's yard an' drop bricks onto him."

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE ANT.

"It's too bad," said Lord Black Ant one day.

"Maybe it is," said Lady Black Ant, "but as I don't know what you are talking about or thinking about I am a poor one to give my opinion."

"Then I will tell you, but I didn't want to make you unhappy."

"Oh dear, oh dear," said Lady Black Ant. "How sad! Have you been unhappy and haven't told me. My dear child, Prince Black Ant, fetch your mother her pocket handkerchief which is hanging on the third stick in my cupboard."

Prince Black Ant hurried with the handkerchief.

"My dear, my dear," said Lord Black Ant. "I didn't mean to make you sad. That was why I didn't tell you before. You mustn't feel like this. You truly mustn't. It's too much, too much."

"I can't help it. I can't help it. The tears will come. It's sad, so very, very sad."

"Poor Lady Black Ant," said Lord Black Ant.

"Poor dear Mother," said Prince Black Ant, and Princess Black Ant who had just come hurrying from her hole, or room, said, "Poor dear Mother."

Prince Black Ant Hurried With the Handkerchief.

you mustn't weep. You really mustn't. No matter how sad it is you mustn't weep."

They were all weeping now. Pretty soon along came Prince and Princess Gray Ant.

"What in the world, or in the Ant Hill, is all the trouble?" they asked.

"It's so very sad," said Lady Black Ant.

"What is it that is so sad?" asked Prince Gray Ant. And then Lady Ant stopped weeping quite suddenly.

"I'm sure I don't know," she said. "You're weeping, and you don't know what about?" asked Princess Gray Ant in surprise.

"Does any one know what it's about?" asked Prince Gray Ant.

"Lord Black Ant must know," said Lady Black Ant, "because he told me it was sad so that I wept."

"You wept because he said something was sad, and you didn't even stop to hear what it was!" exclaimed Prince Gray Ant.

"I never heard of anything so absurd!" said Princess Gray Ant.

"I stopped to hear it," said Lady Black Ant, "but he didn't tell me. Maybe it was too sad. And yet the thought that it might be too sad to have heard she commenced to weep again."

"You don't know at all how sad it is, so don't weep, but wait in patience until he tells you," suggested Prince Gray Ant.

"What were you going to tell her that was sad?" asked Princess Gray Ant.

"I was going to tell her of something that I said might make her unhappy—I didn't say it was sad though," said Lord Black Ant.

"If it would make me unhappy, it would be bound to be sad."

"Not at all," said Prince Gray Ant. "Yes mother, it may be as you thought," said Prince Black Ant. "We must wait and see."

"I was going to say," commenced Lord Black Ant.

"Yes, yes, hurry, hurry, what were you going to say?" asked Lady Black Ant.

"Give him a chance, mother," said Princess Black Ant. "Daddy will tell us soon."

"I was going to say that it was a very great pity that we couldn't open our new summer boarding house this week."

"And what else?" asked Lady Black Ant.

"That was all," said Lord Black Ant. "I thought it was too bad."

"Why can't we?" asked Lady Black Ant, who hadn't used her handkerchief in some moments.

"Because the hill was knocked down where the boarding house stood and all the workers had to hurry away to save themselves. I was afraid it would make you unhappy to hear about it."

"Oh no," said Lady Black Ant. "Everything can't go right in business all the time. We'll just start right to work to build another."

"And again, Lord Black Ant, don't make a mountain out of an ant hill. It's better to tell things than to pretend you have sad and terrible secrets to hide!"

OFFICIAL FOOD NEWS OF FEDERAL FOOD ADMINISTRATION

J. CECIL BROWN,
Director of Education,
Oklahoma City.

WHEAT VIOLATORS

Strict enforcement of the rule requiring the purchase of wheat substitutes with white flour and the use of fifty per cent of substitutes in bakery bread will be insisted upon by the federal food administration, according to announcement of C. B. Ames, Oklahoma administrator.

Judge Ames emphasized his announcement by closing three Oklahoma City bakeries found to be using less substitute than required by the regulations. One bakery was closed for 41 days, another for 14 days and a third for seven days, dependent upon the amount of wheat substitute lacking in the bread and pastry.

Bakeries which do not use the required amount of substitutes will be closed and all grocers who sell white flour without selling an equal amount of substitutes will be dealt with summarily, according to Judge Ames.

"The fact that we have just harvested a great wheat crop does not give us license to throw down the bars to the flour barrel," Judge Ames said. "We must observe wheat saving regulations rigidly in order to build up a reserve of wheat which will tide us over as emergency."

LESS WHEAT IN AUGUST

There will be less sugar for distribution in August than there was in July, according to a telegram which C. B. Ames, federal food administrator for Oklahoma, has received from Washington. The August allotment of sugar for Oklahoma probably will not be more than 70 per cent of the July allotment.

More strict conservation measures and enforcement of the 2 pound per person limit is being urged by the state administration.

OKLAHOMA FOOD ZONES

Oklahoma has been divided into food administration zones by C. B. Ames, federal administrator, in order to obtain more uniform enforcement of regulations.

In these zones meetings will be held frequently which will be attended by county food administrators of the zone. Judge Ames will attend most of these meetings.

"I believe these zone meetings will result in more good than state meetings," Judge Ames said. "The attendance at the state meetings is too large to bring about a free exchange of opinion which we can have at a smaller meeting."

TO THE VOTERS OF CON. DISTRICT NO. 2

As the campaign nears a close I desire to call the attention of the voters again to the policies I have heretofore announced to which I stand pledged and in event of election will strictly and with fidelity adhere. It has been impossible for me to meet each voter in person but I trust those I have not met will give my candidacy due consideration. Living as I do in the Southern part of the District I desire to assure those living in the Northern and Western parts that they shall be accorded equal and just consideration in the distribution of all funds for the construction of roads, culverts and bridges. It shall be my purpose as far as possible to give every section good roads and not just the few that may live on or near favored routes. Confidently believing the people will give me a fair and impartial consideration and that I shall be elected I am respectfully,
W. B. (BARNEY) SELFREDGE.
